You are on a plane and ready to take your first bite of airplane food, but it doesn't taste as good as it does on land. So, why do food and drinks on airplanes taste different?

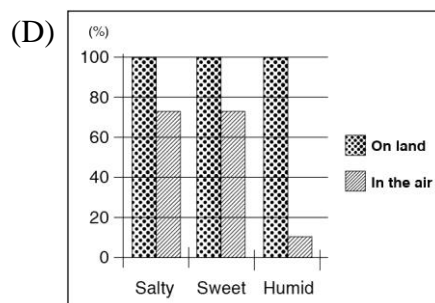

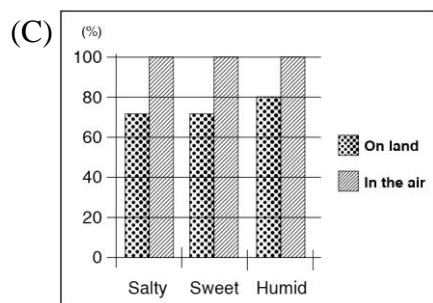

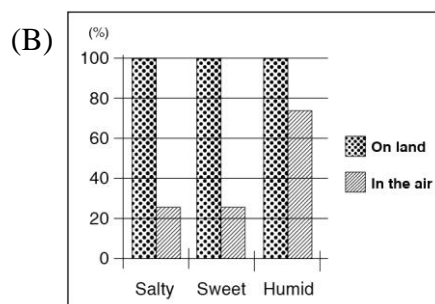

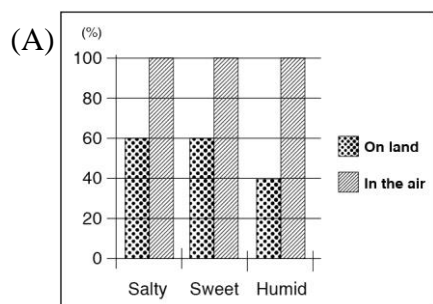

In fact, we tell flavors through our senses of smell and taste. Sadly, those two senses become less strong when we fly 30,000 feet above the Earth. The humidity level in the air is only 12%, and the air pressure is really low. As a result, our noses don't work so well. When our noses don't work well, our sense of taste doesn't, either. That is because 80% of our sense of taste comes from our sense of smell. Therefore, salty and sweet flavors go down by about 30%. On top of that, the loud noise from the plane makes the problem even worse. Luckily, we can still taste bitter, sour, and spicy flavors.

Now, you know what changes the taste of food and drinks on airplanes. So, the next time you are on a plane and taste something bad, the problem may not just be with the cooks.
